HOW TO USE THIS LISTLearn the words in the order the exam rewards them

Most 11+ vocabulary marks come from ordinary words known precisely, not rare words known vaguely. Closest-in-meaning questions put four plausible neighbours next to the answer, so your child needs the exact sense. That is why every word here has a definition, a sentence that shows the meaning, and its close and opposite words: the sentence is the test, and the similar words are the distractors.

The three tiersFoundation (106)

Words a confident Year 5 reader meets in class reading. Learn these first: they carry the closest-in-meaning and sentence-completion marks that most children can win.

Strong (101)

The words that turn up as answer options in 11+ closest-in-meaning and synonym questions. Knowing these precisely is what separates a solid score from a competitive one.

Stretch (47)

Less common words a well-read Year 6 child may meet in harder passages or as distractors. Add these once the first two tiers are automatic.

A routine that works: ten words, four dated touchesDay 1

Read the word, meaning and sentence aloud. Your child writes one new sentence of their own for each word.

Day 3

Cover the meanings. Show only the words. Your child says the meaning; anything missed goes back to tomorrow.

Day 7

Open any book. Could each word replace a word in a paragraph and keep the sense? That is the closest-in-meaning skill.

Day 21

Ten quick questions, a minute each, then tick the box. Missed words rejoin a new batch at day 1.

The tick box and the labels

Tick a word only when your child can use it in a sentence of their own without help. 8 words carry a KS2 spelling label: they are on the national curriculum statutory spelling lists for Years 3 to 4 or Years 5 to 6, so school already expects them and they are a good place to start.
